TWO-CENT STAMP BACK WITH THE FIRECRACKER

Displaces War's Three-Center and Many Return to Writing Letters.

Officials of the city post office reported a heavy increase in the mailing of letters beginning at midnight on the part of those who held back letters to take advantage of the old pre-war postage rates, which went into effect throughout the nation today.

The old pink two-cent stamps looked mighty familiar to thousands of people who resumed their use in Washington today. Despite the fact that the purple three-center had become familiar through use for the last several months, the pink two-center has never been entirely out of service, for when lined up with a green one-center it got by the cancellation clerk.

George Washington's face, in pink, looked quite happy to greet so many people today. Since the war-time postage rates went into effect the face of the father of the nation has been in eclipse in pink as an ornament on stamps.

At the city post office the new stamp-vending machine was manipulated so as to dispense five two-cent stamps instead of three three-cent stamps and one cent in change. The machine lost its power of giving change, of course, but still deftly hands back lead slugs.

Unused and undamaged two-cent postal cards and 3-cent stamped envelopes with the redemption at full value from original purchasers during the month of July, the Post Office Department announced today. Postmasters will not redeem 3-cent and 4-cent postage stamps from the public.

Prices of stamped envelopes went up today. The cost of envelopes to the department has increased, and prices to the public are charged beginning today. The increase will be 12 cents per thousand on first quality printed and unprinted envelopes of the Nos. 5 and 13 sizes. Prices of envelopes may be had on inquiry at the city post office or substations.

OLD HOSPITAL BUILDING NOW HOUSE OF DETENTION

Assigned for Use of District, the Present Quarters Being Declared Inadequate.

The former Emergency Hospital building, at 15th street and Ohio avenue, has been assigned by the public buildings commission as a house of detention for the District of Columbia. The building will be used in place of the present house of detention, which is entirely inadequate.

AMERICAN STEEL MEN UNDERSELLING BRITISH

Reported Quoting Lower Prices Than Those Named by Manufacturers of England.

LONDON, June 29 (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Sir Auckland Geddes, president of the board of trade, said in the house of commons the other day that American steel manufacturers were quoting prices for steel in the United Kingdom lower than those quoted by British manufacturers. Nevertheless, he said, the government was not prepared to restrict the importation of iron and steel, because of the demand for it in Great Britain.

Lieut. Col. Sir F. Hall declared that the American steel manufacturers were underselling British steel in the English markets by 20 shillings a ton and upward. He asked Sir Auckland if the government was going to do anything to protect British steel manufacturers from this American competition. This evoked the reply that the government intended to impose no restrictions at present.

"There is a very great demand for iron and steel in this country at present and our producers are not able to meet it," said Sir Auckland Geddes. "Our foreign trade demands a large amount of iron and steel to be worked into things to be exported."

QUOTES BONAR LAW THAT 21 WARS RAGE, PEACE NOT HERE

Frank Simonds Makes Partial Computation of Cotemporary Conflicts.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Speaking in the house of commons last week Bonar Law warned the British public that peace was still in the future, and that at the present moment in which he was speaking not less than twenty-one wars were in progress. When I left Paris, three weeks ago, one of the American officials connected with the peace mission had calculated that the number of wars then going on was eighteen. But if one calculates the number of wars either in progress or at the point of breaking out, the total will be nearer thirty than twenty.

In the present article I am going to try to make, not a complete list—this is next to impossible—but a partial computation of the cotemporary conflicts, indicating, where it is possible, the occasion of the fighting. Such a list may serve the useful purpose of demonstrating how long and difficult is the task before the responsible statesmen of the world before anything approaching the peaceful conditions of five years ago can be restored.

New Poland Has Most Wars.

To begin at the beginning, the nation richest in wars at the present hour would seem to be the new Polish country. Polish troops at the moment are actively engaged in fighting the Ukrainians in Galicia, the bolsheviks in White Russia, and the Czechoslovaks in the Ukraine. The Poles are fighting for the possession of eastern Galicia and its capital, Lemberg, which they hold. With the bolsheviks they are fighting to preserve their eastern frontiers, still untroubled from invasion by the reds. With the Germans they are contesting the possession of the Prussian districts which the Poles once included West Prussia. With the Lithuanians they are disputing title to Vilna and practically all of the territory of this race, which was once united with Poland. With the Czechoslovaks they are quarrelling over the district of Teschen.

Rumania Comes Next.

Rumania is only a little less affluent in wars than Poland; it has not yet concluded its campaign against the Hungarians; it is daily fighting the bolsheviks on the Danube; it is threatened with a new fight with the Bulgars over the Dobruja. The occasion of Rumania's wars is without exception territorial; the bolsheviks are fighting to regain Bessarabia, an old Russian province, populated by Rumanians, which has voluntarily united itself with Rumania. The Hungarians are resisting Rumanian occupation of the Transylvanian and Banat regions, peopled by Rumanians, which are to go to the latter under the terms of the Paris treaty. The Serbs are determined to hold the Banat, a territorial county in the Banat, which has a majority of Serb inhabitants and has been assigned to the Serbs by the Paris conference. As the Bulgars, they are planning a new effort to recover the southern Dobruja—their enemies of the central powers three years ago.

Serbia's Contests.

Nor is Serbia poor in wars for she finds herself embroiled at the present moment with Rumania, with Italy, with Bulgaria, with Austria, with Hungary, and she is carrying on an active little campaign of her own against the Albanians. With Rumania, Serbia is fighting for the title to the western Banat, with Austria she is actually fighting for Klagenfurt and certain districts north of the Drave river; with Italy the dispute is over Trieste, Dalmatia and the territories at the head of the Adriatic, and this dispute has already made a profound impression in Paris, provoking the President's appeal to the Italian and, at least indirectly, the fall of the Orlando ministry. With Hungary the Serbs are disputing regions between the Drave and the Danube and across the Theiss from the Tera. With the Bulgarians there is the fiercest contest over Macedonia, and with the Albanians the fight, at least 700 years old, for Pribrist, Jacova and Ipek.

Czechoslovaks in Conflicts.

The Czechoslovaks on their part are today actually fighting the Hungarians; they are at odds with the Poles, as I have said, over Teschen, and they have a bitter quarrel on with the Ukrainians; they are also at odds with both the Germans and the Austrians. With the Ukrainians they are disputing the title to the Slav districts lying along the eastern Carpathians between Rumania, Galicia and Hungary. With the Hungarians they are actually fighting for Klagenfurt and certain districts north of the Drave river, while with Austria and Germany they are at odds over the ultimate disposition of more than three million of German speaking people in Bohemia, Moravia and Austrian Silesia which the Paris conference has awarded to the new Slav state.

Russia Has Other Wars.

Turning to Russia, there are several respectable-sized wars going on in addition to the small conflicts along the fringes, which I have already mentioned. The Letts, Estonians and Finns are engaged in wars on other
